History Of SUPW

Brief History of SUPW Camp

The full form of SUPW camp is Soc Useful Productive Work.
 In July 1977, the term SUPW was first by the ministry of education to encourage the values, morals and educational teaching of great Mahatma Gandhi.

The Ishwarbai Patel Committee gave the concept of SUPW. In 1978, the subject was first introduced into the school curriculum by the Ministry of Education Government of India and is mandatory part of the school curriculum of the educational systems.

Concept Of SUPW

Ishwarbai Patel Committee described SUPW as deliberate, useful and significant manual work that will result in the betterment of society. It is useful for learner because with the help of education and creativity people will develop a coherent society. It must include preparation, execution and analysis of work.

socially related work with modern technologies and techniques to develop a progressive society. The four main components are science, work, humanity and harmony of society and is based on the ideals of discipline, humanity, equality, freedom, and secularism.
